THE INSOLENCE OF OFFICE.

By E. H. Rydall.

Boiling over with rage at the insolence of one of these Southern Pacific officials I find an article in a well-known magazine for July on the subject of Glasgow, Scotland, contrasted with New York, showing that in Scotland the country is run for the benefit of the million, while in the United States the million are all seeking a bare existence in their efforts to fatten the four hundred and preserve them in milk baths and luxury. Ten days ago I purchased a forty-dollar ticket from the Southern Pacific Railroad and started for Portland to attend the Elks' reunion. Arrived at Oakland I sequestered a brief period to see a friend and then resumed my journey, catching sleepers night after night as is my custom, at some risk. As I approached the sleeping car at Oakland, 8:57 p. m., the conductor demanded my berth ticket. "That, I have yet to obtain," I replied. "Well, get in, maybe we have an upper"; so in I went and for over an hour chased that conductor through that long train of twelve cars trying to arrest his attention to obtain the ticket for the upper. I was about to give up when the darkey in one of the cars said: "You just chase him; dat's de only way to get a berth." There were several others wanting berths, I observed, but they pursued not. Here was an anxious customer of an imperial railway chasing an autocratic representative for the purpose of paying him money and the autocratic representative knew it as well as the pursuer. At last I found him in a recess and exclaimed, "What about that upper?" "All right, here it is," and he took the money and handed me the check.

The next afternoon the conductor came to me and handed my route ticket back and stated that I would have to get off at Sisson—some distance ahead—and await the second section of the same train. Now, I had discovered there were three empty uppers in the car in which I slept, and a man leaving at Weed, a place some distance ahead, told me I could have his berth, for he was going to Klamath or some other place. Just then a second conductor appeared, who seemed to be subservient to the first imperator, and he took my ticket; after about an hour the first imperial officer of this sovereign corporation that rules the State of California and behaves as it likes came to me again and said, "You will have to get off at Sisson; no more uppers." So I went to the second conductor and told him of the three or four vacant berths and that I saw no reason for getting off at Sisson. Again came the superior insolent of the company, and I told him that I had arranged with the second conductor to remain. So that was the last I saw of the first conductor.

Now, if this man wanted money, why did he not say: "Two dollars more and you can stay on; otherwise you must get off at Sisson?" I have been mixed up ever since trying to find the reason for this projection from the car to await the second section, and have at last put it down to sheer elephantiasis, or swellhead, arising from a too long continuance in office. The man had outlived his usefulness and merely wanted to show his authority, and was not merely prompted by emotions arising from human avarice.

The contrast between this insolence of this

Southern Pacific official and the interesting literature of the company is striking. The men in the employ of the Southern Pacific who write the circulars and pamphlets must have passed through college and learned manners and morality. They claim that the company is ever endeavoring to please and satisfy the dear public, and that at every large depot is a sweet man dressed in gray with a red cap, who is there only to answer questions and be polite. The horrible suspicion has arisen in my mind that these are the only men in the company's service required to be polite; that all the others have been instructed in the Vanderbiltian theory expressed in the phrase, "The public be damned."

The Honorable Frank I. Cohen, Master of Works of Glasgow, Scotland, compares the wretched treatment accorded the public by the minions of transit companies in New York with the respectful behavior of officials on street cars in Glasgow, the latter being all servants of a great people and the former the parasites of private exploitive corporations all endowed with selfish and cruel instincts. He was punched in

LABOR DAY PROGRAM EDITION

The "Labor Clarion" is to publish a handsome Labor Day Program number which will befit the occasion.

The "Labor Clarion" has advertising solicitors in the field at the present time who have in their possession credentials duly attested, as this paper is owned and published by the San Francisco Labor Council, and is also the official paper of the California State Federation of Labor.

Labor Day is the one day of all the year that is truly devoted to a celebration in honor of those who toil for wages. It is the one day that those who toil are brought together in one gathering to commune with each other in a fraternal spirit, so that upon this occasion it is the purpose of the "Labor Clarion" to get out an official Labor Day Program number that will be a credit to the movement, and those business men who desire to secure their portion of the patronage of the organized workers will find this number a particularly valuable advertising medium, as it will reach practically every unionist in the bay counties.

Some time ago the Labor Council and the Building Trades Council both unanimously passed resolutions declaring the "LABOR CLARION" and "Organized Labor" the only authorized official Labor Day programs and publications for this year's Labor Day.

the back by a New York conductor and told to "hurry up"; and that if he wanted to smoke, "go take a taxi"; and he heard other jeering and impudent observations from these servants of monopoly. What the Honorable would have said had he been ejected from a car on the Southern Pacific just before we arrived at Sisson, is not printed, but there is no doubt that his language would have been severe.

Looking around for a panacea for this unfortunate state of affairs I have considered a "School for Conductors," but am sure that would be of no account in the matter, for it is not the tyros that are guilty in this matter, but the aged and experienced conductors, who have been consulted by the public so long that they have acquired elephantiasis or big head, and do things entirely out of harmony with the dulcet and attractive advertising of the company in regard to their polite attendants.

There can be no escape from the diagnosis I have made in this particular matter. It might be suggested that there were three or four candidates for sleeping accommodations at Weed, coming down from Klamath Falls, en route to the Elks' reunion at Portland; if such were the case, still my claim had precedence, for I slept in the car the night before and was thus entitled to consideration as a prior occupant; but it turned out that not a single applicant appeared at Weed, and I quietly slept until the car rolled into Oregon's civilized districts.

I was very polite, of course, because in talking to a great corporation possessing a sole right of way and able to dictate its terms to an oppressed and long-suffering, God-fearing and money-grubbing community, it is discreet to be polite.

METAL TRADES AGREEMENT.

After many conferences between representatives of the Metal Trades Association of employers and the Iron Trades Council a plan for a contract to run five years was agreed upon and was then referred to the two organizations for ratification.

The Iron Trades Council indorsed the agreement on Tuesday night, but the executive committee of the Metal Trades Association rejected it on Monday night, leaving the situation just where it was before. In the meantime the present agreement, which insures the eight-hour day, will remain in force until a substitute agreement to take its place is adopted.

The proposed new agreement, which has just met defeat, provided for the eight-hour day for five years and for an increase of 25 cents per day in the wages of machinists at the expiration of the present agreement in November, 1913. In the next year following, the machinists were to receive another increase of the same amount. The new agreement would also have guarded against lockouts on the part of the employers, or strikes by the unions.

DISCUSS LAND QUESTION.

"Social Administration of the Land" will be the subject of an address by Mayor J. Stitt Wilson of Berkeley, to be delivered at Scottish Rite Assembly Hall, corner Van Ness avenue and Sutter street, on Sunday evening, July 21st, at 8 o'clock. The meeting is open to the public.

HOW THE BODY DEFENDS ITSELF AGAINST DISEASE.

By Dr. G. R. Hubbell.

The opportunities for infection are so great, and diseased germs are so constantly present, that if the human economy has no means of natural defense the earth would soon become depopulated. The power which enables the body to defend itself against disease is known as resistance, and when this is specially marked it is spoken of as "immunity."

Resistance depends upon individual or racial peculiarities. Some species are naturally immune to certain diseases. Thus many diseases common to man do not affect animals, while other diseases, such as rinderpest and chicken cholera, have never been transmitted to man.

As a general rule where a disease has existed in a race for many ages they are less susceptible to it than are those among whom it has recently been introduced. Thus the Jew is prone to cancer and diabetes, and resistant to tuberculosis. In the animal kingdom the Japanese cattle are particularly free from tuberculosis, while in this country and Europe the disease is alarmingly prevalent and is frequently a source of infection in man.

Tuberculosis was unknown to the negro in his savage state, even during slavery he was practically free from it, but since his emancipation, the acceptance of civilization while it might have been beneficial from a mental standpoint, has placed him in a position to absorb the refinement of vice without restraint and in an environment which renders his already susceptible body an easy victim. The same might be said of the American Indian; whereas formerly he was free from tuberculosis, at present tuberculosis is responsible for 72 per cent of the deaths and even as high as 95 per cent among some tribes.

Lydston says: "Our American Indian gained nothing as a race from civilization. He lost his manliness and self-respect and his primitive standard of truth and honor, was despoiled of his property and his right to solve the problem of life after his own fashion, and received in return the indigestible unassimilable theology, fire-water, loose morals and the multitudinous diseases of his conquerors."

As far as individual immunity is concerned it would seem that certain persons possess a natural immunity to infection, although they may be equally exposed with those who take it. Many of the infections, such as measles, occur but once in the same person. It is reasonable to assume that the resistance of this individual has been in some way changed so that he is immune to further attacks.

When an individual is rendered immune to any disease there is no perceptible change produced in the acquisition of this new power. However, it is reasonable to suppose that all the tissues undergo some alteration, and that the blood, inasmuch as it comes in close relation to the entire body, possesses some newly acquired quality. When it was discovered that the injection of weak cultures of germs, and the dead bodies of germs and their toxins would produce immunity in certain susceptible animals, investigation of the blood at once commenced. The results that followed were in a measure startling for it was found that the blood of immunized subjects contained a variety of substances which were destructive to bacteria as well as their poisons.

The human body has a natural resistance in its normal state to any infection like tuberculosis. In the healthy economy there is a constant battle going on between the various bacteria, like the germs of consumption introduced from without, and the white blood corpuscles whose duty it is to act as scavengers for the protection of the human body. If for any reason these warriors are injured through stress of life, poor food, dissipation, or unhygienic surroundings, their defensive powers are broken and the individual yields readily to any bacterial invasion.

Investigators generally have devoted a great deal of time to the study of immunity especially to tuberculosis. It has been found that the cautious use of bacterial products of the germs of tuberculosis will in many instances raise the resistance of the individual so as to enable him to more successfully combat the disease, but efforts at immunity so far have proven unsuccessful.

REGISTER NOW.

The Humane Legislation League emphasizes with this again the need of great activity in behalf of registration.

Solicitors of signatures for initiative measures have discovered that there are not only thousands of women not registered, but thousands of men as well.

It is the duty of every man and woman in the ranks of labor to help overcome the indifference and prejudice of people against voting.

The Humane Legislation League is active in every district and precinct where records show a decidedly small percentage of registration.

Organized labor by united effort should assist the Humane Legislation League and thus achieve the highest record ever obtained in the number of registered voters.

For Thursday, July 18th, and Friday, July 19th, the Mission Grammar, the Glen Park Grammar and the Sheridan Primary schools are open in the afternoon for public meetings under the auspices of the league. The program for six more afternoon meetings in public schools are at this time before the approval of the Board of Education. We appeal to our readers to follow announcements in full in the morning and evening papers.

A series of night meetings in halls are being arranged for next week also, at which measures of importance to labor and the public at large will be presented.

Educators and public officials have willingly consented to address these meetings in public schools on measures of great importance to human welfare.

The women from the ranks of labor should not only make it their purpose to attend such meetings but also assist the league in giving them the widest publicity.

The league also circulates a dodger on which are printed plainly all the district registration branch offices. All those who can aid in distributing these dodgers in homes and factories please make it known by calling or phoning to our headquarters.

A CORRECTION.

Alameda, July 14, 1912.

James W. Mullen,

Dear Sir: As president of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the S. & E. Union No. 11, I wish to have corrected the statement made in your journal under date of July 12th, that the L. P. Straubes were entertained by our order. They were entertained by a private party, the Auxiliary having nothing whatsoever to do with it.

This correction must be made in deference to the officers and members of Ladies' Auxiliary No. 11, of I. S. E. U., in your next issue.

MRS. W. S. MALLOY.

At Worcester, Mass., the employees of the Union Laundry, numbering about 100, have been agreeably surprised by the management of the company announcing that a plan had been inaugurated whereby in the future every employee when sick would receive the sum of $4 a week for thirteen weeks and a funeral benefit of $50 in case of death.

WEB PRESSMEN'S STRIKE.

The strike of the web pressmen on the "Examiner" is still on and is daily gaining in strength and intensity. The circulation of the paper has been greatly curtailed during the past few weeks and the striking men are keeping up the contest to further reduce the field in which it is read. They are meeting with success, for thousands are responding to their request to discontinue reading the Hearst sheet.

Advertisers, too, are withdrawing their patronage from the paper, knowing that under existing circumstances the "Examiner" can not produce results.

The Chicago end of the controversy is also being pushed with a vigor that augurs for success.

Declaring that he was anxious to have the newspaper "strike" ended, Mayor Harrison stated that he would co-operate with the sub-committee of the council committees on schools, fire and civil service appointed Tuesday to effect a settlement of the controversy.

Through the Mayor the sub-committee, composed of Aldermen Michael McInerney, Burns and Ellis Geiger, will make an appeal to the Publishers' Association to appoint a committee to meet with them and discuss the questions at issue with the purpose of arriving at a satisfactory agreement.

Because of the differences between the Hearst papers and the other publishers it is said that some of the publishers may agree to comply with the request of the council committee.

It is reported that Victor F. Lawson of the "Daily News" and James Keeley of the Chicago "Tribune" are planning to make short work of Hearst publishers. Whether John C. Eastman of the "Journal" is ready to co-operate with them is not known, but it is known that Mr. Eastman has advised some of his old employees now on strike not to leave town. This is taken as an indication that he, too, is ready to settle the strike.

Mayor Harrison is said to be particularly anxious to have the strike settled as considerable pressure is being brought to bear upon the city authorities by business men who say that it has caused much loss to the retail merchants of the city.

President Berry says the situation is well in hand and that the pressmen are prepared to win even if it takes a long and stubborn contest. He says, however, that once they get a break in the ranks of the publishers, and indications are that this break will come soon, the contest will be but short lived.

In the meantime trade unionists should remember that the "Examiner" is on the unfair list of the San Francisco Labor Council.

ANTI-JAP LAUNDRY LEAGUE.

Reports of a committee appointed two weeks ago to confer with the other leagues of the State, submitted Thursday night at the meeting of the Anti-Jap Laundry League, brought out the fact that a State Federation of Anti-Japanese leagues is being organized. One meeting of delegates from the various leagues has already been held and temporary officers elected. An important matter to occupy the new federation's attention will be the promotion of the passage of certain remedial measures at the next session of the Legislature, preparatory action on which is now under way. The new organization expects to centralize the opposition to Japanese in such a way that the full force of its protest may be felt and its extent generally realized.

One hundred large 8-sheet posters to read "Fire The Jap. No White Man or Woman Can Compete with Japanese and Maintain the White Man's Standard," were ordered and will be on the boards next week.

CONVENTION CALL.

San Francisco, Cal., July 15, 1912.

To Affiliated Unions: Pursuant to law, you are hereby advised that the thirteenth annual convention of the California State Federation of Labor will be held in Germania Hall, San Diego, California, beginning at 10 a. m., Monday, October 7, 1912, and continuing in session from day to day until the business of the convention has been completed.

Representation—Representation in the convention will be upon the following basis:

Each regular affiliated organization shall be entitled to representation (based upon the average per capita tax paid into the Federation during the preceding year, i. e., the total amount paid in, divided by twelve), as follows:

Unions shall be entitled to two delegates for the first 100 members or less and one delegate for each succeeding 100 members or major fraction thereof; provided, that no union shall be entitled to more than six delegates.

Central labor bodies shall be entitled to two delegates each. Each delegate entitled to one vote.

Each delegate shall vote an equal percentage of the membership of the union he or she represents on all questions where roll-call vote is taken; provided, all fractional votes be eliminated.

No proxies shall be allowed.

Each delegate-elect and each alternate-elect shall receive credentials from the secretary of the organization he or she represents, and a duplicate of the same shall be forwarded by said secretary to the secretary-treasurer of the Federation two weeks prior to the convention.

If an alternate presents credentials and is seated, he or she shall be the only recognized representative throughout the session.

All notices of contests must be served on the secretary-treasurer prior to five days before the convening of the convention, and parties making such contest shall be permitted to appear before the committee on credentials.

No organization shall be entitled to representation unless such organization has applied for affiliation at least three months prior to the convention, and no person shall be recognized as a delegate who is not a member in good standing of the organization issuing the credentials; provided, organizations chartered within three months of the meeting of the convention shall be eligible to representation.

Credentials—Credentials in duplicate are enclosed herewith. The original credentials must be given to the delegates-elect and the duplicates forwarded to the California State Federation of Labor office, 316 Fourteenth street, San Francisco. The duplicate credentials should be mailed at least two weeks prior to the opening of the convention, as provided in the constitution.

Railroad Rates—Note: The Southern Pacific Company is on the unfair list! The Santa Fe Railway Company has made a reduced rate of one and one-third lowest first-class fare for the round trip from all stations in California. Delegates when purchasing tickets for the going trip must ask the agent at the starting point to give them a receipt certificate on account of the convention of the California State Federation of Labor. Upon presentation of the receipt certificates to the company's agents at San Diego, after the certificates have been indorsed by the secretary of the convention, return tickets will be issued at one-third of the regular rate. Certificates for the return trip will be honored October 7th to 14th, inclusive.

Steamship Rates—Special arrangements have been made with the Pacific Navigation Company for round trip rates on the steamers "Harvard" and "Yale," as follows: From San Francisco to San Diego and return, $12.50. From Los Angeles to San Diego and return, $3.50. These rates do not include berth or meals. Meals may be had on board in an up-to-date restaurant a la carte. A good berth will cost $1 inside or $1.50 outside. Rooms may be had for $2 up. These rates are good only on the following trips: Leaving San Francisco, Wednesday, October 2, or Friday, October 4th. Leaving Los Angeles, Thursday, October 3d, or Saturday, October 5th. Delegates when purchasing these tickets must state to the agent that they are going to the convention of the California State Federation of Labor. The return trip must be made within 30 days from day ticket is purchased.

General Information—All proposed amendments to the constitution should be forwarded to the office of the secretary one week before the opening of the convention.

Delegates wishing to make hotel or room reservation should correspond with Ira H. Markwith, secretary Federated Trades and Labor Council, 739 Fourth street, San Diego, California.

If there should be any further information regarding the convention, or the arrangements for the convenience of delegates, it will be communicated in a later circular, or through the labor press.

D. D. SULLIVAN, President.
PAUL SCHARRENBERG, Secretary-Treasurer.

THE DARROW TRIAL.

The evidence introduced during the past week by the defense in the trial of Clarence S. Darrow at Los Angeles has placed the prosecution in a most embarrassing position. Many witnesses have testified to facts which conclusively prove that the witness upon whom the prosecution based its hope for conviction is thoroughly unreliable. He has time after time been contradicted by other witnesses as to vital facts.

P. J. Pirotte, postmaster at the suburb of Venice, was the most important witness of the day, and he was subjected to a grueling cross-examination by Assistant District Attorney Ford, which had not been concluded at adjournment time.

Pirotte testified to having held several conversations with Franklin in which the latter had said Darrow had never given him the money with which to bribe Juror Lockwood.

"Franklin told me," said the witness, "that there were other moneys that the attorneys for the McNamaras' defense knew nothing about. He also said that he had not sent any message to Darrow the morning of his arrest, and that if any one called him on the telephone to ask him to go to the scene of Franklin's arrest it was Detective Browne of the District Attorney's office."

Pirotte testified that Franklin had told him at another meeting that he was not worried about the outcome of the charges against him.

"They don't want me; they are after Darrow," he told the witness.

"He said that he had pleaded guilty to the charge of bribing Juror Bain," said Pirotte. "It had not cost him anything, as the State had paid his fine, but they were holding the Lockwood case over him so that he would testify against Darrow."

Some of the replies extracted by the prosecution on cross-examination were apparently embarrassing to the District Attorney. Pirotte said Franklin had told him that Captain Fredericks was one of the best friends he ever had.

"He told me that Fredericks was under great political obligations to him," said the witness, "because once, when political enemies were trying to get some documents connected with some trouble Fredericks was in some years ago, Franklin, who was in the United States Marshal's office, had secreted them."

Pirotte narrated a conversation with Franklin in which the latter had told of his plea of guilty before Judge Cabaniss. "He said Judge Cabaniss had given him an awful raking over, but later the judge came to him and apologized."

The bailiffs were called on to suppress laughter at this point of the witness' examination.

Other witnesses who testified during the week were Tom L. Johnson, an attorney who acted as intermediary between Franklin and the District Attorney's office, and Carl F. White, a newspaper man, both of whom testified that Franklin, in conversation with them, had absolved the defendant of any complicity in the alleged jury bribing.

The relations between Clarence S. Darrow and G. G. Watt were gone into at length by District Attorney Fredericks when Mr. Watt resumed the stand. The witness professed the highest regard for the defendant, and acknowledged that he had taken advantage of the opportunity to do him a service when thrown accidentally into the company of Bert H. Franklin.

Mr. Watt testified that Franklin had said in his presence that the prosecution of Darrow was undertaken with the ultimate object of involving Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor.

Fremont Older was next called to the stand for the ostensible purpose of impeaching a State witness. Early in his examination the editor of the San Francisco "Bulletin" was placed in the attitude of a virtually important witness for the defense.

Strenuous efforts were made by the prosecution to keep out the testimony of Mr. Older, during which District Attorney Fredericks took occasion to designate Lincoln Steffens as a "busy-body, buzzing around, trying to butt in and start something." He referred satirically to Steffens "doing something for humanity." This drew the retort from Mr. Darrow that, if Mr. Steffens desired to do something for humanity, "it was a rather laudable thing, but one not in especial favor with the District Attorney."

It became evident early in Mr. Older's examination that the defense expected to prove through him as well as Steffens that arrangements had been practically concluded for the McNamara's to plead guilty several days before the alleged bribing of Juror Lockwood was consummated.

The witness said he came to Los Angeles on November 23d, five days before the bribery expose, to take part in a conference in the matter of the disposition of the McNamara case. He produced a telegram dated November 22d, and signed by Darrow and Steffens, asking him to join them in the conference on the following day.

A strike of maritime organizations directed against coastwise lines is in progress at the ports of New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Norfolk and Galveston and other ports. It is reported that a number of shipping companies have acceded to the demands made and signed agreements. Higher wages and better conditions are demanded by the sailors, firemen and oilers.

MACHINISTS' PICNIC.

San Francisco Lodge No. 68, Oakland Lodge No. 284, and Industrial Lodge No. 610, of Oakland, International Association of Machinists, held their fourth joint annual outing, games, athletic events and reunion last Saturday in Shell Mound Park, Emeryville, entertaining a large number of members of the three lodges, their families and friends. Dancing in the pavilion and picnic and luncheon parties in the shaded arbors of the park occupied the greater part of the day and evening, while the track events held the attention of hundreds during the afternoon. The speed events included races for boys and girls under 12 and under 16 years of age, for young men and young women, for unmarried men and women, irrespective of age, for apprentices, for members of the participating lodges, for married men and women, irrespective of affiliation, past presidents of lodges, wives of members, fat men and women, bald-headed men, for members of committees, professional sprinters and amateurs, races for machinists only, and a three-legged race, a temperance race, free-for-all competitors, and a consolation race. In each event from two to four prizes were awarded. A number of presents were distributed among patrons of the park, irrespective of the contests. Much of the success of the outing was due to the efforts of the following committees in charge of the affair:

LABOR NEWS NOTES.

Four thousand men and women garment workers are on strike in Montreal, Canada, for the abolition of the sweating and sub-contract system. The demands of the union are to establish the same conditions in Montreal as prevail in Toronto and Hamilton, and the usual feature, of course, is the fact that the clothing manufacturers have declared for the "open shop."

Officials of the Pattern Makers' League state that they are receiving reports from all sections of the country of wage increases and other improved conditions of employment. There is also a steady increase in membership and greater activity by members of local organizations.

At Cedar Rapids, Ia., information is to the effect that 25 lodges comprising the Order of Railway Conductors, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen, are favorable to forming a system federation of the Northwestern Railroad. This is following the line of the system federations recently perfected by the shop organizations.

At Auburn, N. Y., the local union of hod carriers and building laborers, after a strike lasting two weeks, have secured an agreement carrying an increase in wages ranging from 50 to 65 cents per day, and the union shop.

FRIDAY, JULY 19, 1912.

If what shone afar so grand
Turned to ashes in the hand?
On again, the virtue lies
In the struggle, not the prize.

We are in receipt of the official journal of the Broom and Whisk Makers' International Union, which has not been received of late. It appears now, however, as neat as a new pin.

"The Society of Illiterates has announced its opposition to the acceptance of tainted money for library purposes," says the San Francisco "Chronicle." Is this society connected with the "Chronicle's" editorial staff? If not, how did the paper succeed in "scooping" its rivals in this matter of news?

Not much is heard these days of Attorney-General Webb in prosecuting the anarchists of San Diego. Much is heard, however, of the preparations of the District Attorney of San Diego County to prosecute some of the victims of these anarchists. A square deal seems to be foreign to that section of the State.

Organizations, when called upon by the Agitation Committee of the Label Section, might well spare about ten minutes of their time for this committee to address the membership in the interest of the label, card and button. Out of courtesy, if for no other reason, they should be admitted. It will be time well spent. These men volunteer their services and deserve recognition.

It is humorous to hear some employers complain of the carelessness of employees as the main cause of industrial accidents. They say that they establish rules for the safety of their employees but that they ignore them. This is the silliest kind of rot. Most of these alleged safety rules are of such a nature that the employee would be unable to perform his duties if he observed them, and the employer neither expects nor desires that he do so. Experience has proven that if employees obey these alleged safety rules established by their employers they do not hold their positions long. As an illustration, a railroad company will adopt a rule that trainmen shall not alight from or mount cars while in motion. This, it is true, would guarantee safety, but how long would a brakeman who delayed trains by a religious observance of such a law remain in the employ of the railroad company? Such complaints on the part of employers are absurd and are made solely for effect. A few dollars expended in the installation of safety devices is the only way to prevent industrial accidents, or a very large percentage of them.

THE NEED OF OUR TIME

Frequently, we may say commonly, we see men elected to public office, men we know to be honest, men in whom we have every confidence, men we believe will perform every duty faithfully and well, and we find that they do not do all the things we expected of them. We wonder why. There must be some good reason. The men are honest, we feel sure, yet the reasons advanced are not good, or they maintain silence and give no reason at all for their failure to do given things. What is the trouble? Why this failure of performance?

Very frequently the answer is to be found in timidity—lack of backbone. The men do not possess the courage of their convictions. Someone to whom they feel under obligations is opposed to the plan, or public opinion seems to be on the other side, or there is danger of their object being misunderstood or misrepresented by designing persons, and because such misrepresentation has a logical appearance, they fail of performance even though they personally feel that the thing ought to be done. Such conduct, nevertheless, is cowardice.

That men who have the courage of their convictions are none too numerous in the world we are well aware, but wrongdoing can not be justified upon the ground that numerous others do wrong.

The independent, courageous fellow may sometimes find himself in pretty hot water while carrying out his purpose, but, feeling the righteousness of his cause, he will persevere to the bitter end, and compel the respect and recognition even of his opponents. As a general thing such a man is a sensible man, a reasonable man, who does not heedlessly rush in roughshod "where angels fear to tread," and as a result public opinion ultimately places the stamp of its approval upon his conduct.

Courage is a trait of character so universally admired that it is really surprising that there is so little of it. It is true that great moral courage does not bring the immediate rewards, as a rule, that fall to the lot of the less courageous soul who trims his sails to catch every breeze that blows, but the expert trimmer is usually lost in the night of time, while the man who has the courage to carry out his convictions in the face of ridicule by his friends and taunts by his enemies has the satisfaction of triumph and approval in the end. The coward does not believe this, but it is true, nevertheless, for "Courage comprehends the absence of all fear, the disregard of all personal convenience, the spirit to begin, and the determination to pursue what has been begun," and can not meet defeat as a final proposition.

It will be remembered that after President Lincoln had been nominated for a second term the army was in great need of recruits, and he decided to issue a call for 500,000 men. Leading members of Congress advised him to withhold the order as it would endanger his election to issue such a call then, and to this advice was added the influence of all his political adherents, but this sort of thing only spurred him on, his reply being: "It is not necessary for me to be re-elected, but it is necessary for the soldiers at the front to be reinforced by 500,000 men, and I shall call for them, and if I go down under the act, I will go down like the Cumberland, with my colors flying." He did issue the call, and he did not go down by the act, though it looked like suicide politically, because he was being severely criticised by men of power and influence on every side.

It is always easier to be a trimmer than it is to do the thing that should be done; it is easier to be an insignificant coward than a strong man of definite purpose and the courage essential to performance, but the insignificant coward is always a lurking danger because unscrupulous, designing men are apt to use him to the dire disadvantage of those who elected him.

The man who has the courage of his convictions may be compelled at times to fight fierce battles to maintain his position, but ultimately he will rise above the dead level of the crowd and be recognized and trusted by the people, because it will be apparent to them that upon such shoulders must rest their future destiny.

The man who has the courage of his convictions is as necessary as he is scarce. He is necessary in politics, he is necessary in union affairs, he is necessary in every walk of life, and opportunities are open for him on every hand to lead the way to successful accomplishment. Everyone, even his enemies, must respect him.

Of cowardly, cringing trimmers we have an abundant oversupply everywhere, yet there seems to be a scramble among the weaklings to get into the wagon where they can get their opinions ready made from their masters, it is so much easier. No one can respect such a character, not even those who map out the road he travels, because they know his lack of courage and despise him.

Men of stamina who possess the courage to stand unflinchingly by the things they believe to be right are needed everywhere, and especially in public and semi-public places.

The other kind of man is so numerous as to be a nuisance and a burden to society. He propagates and grows like weeds in an unattended field.

Of all the undesirable characters with which society is cursed about the worst is the man who is always ready to grab the thing that gives temporary advantage at the expense of the permanent good of the people, and this is just what every trimmer does.

The greatest need of our time is independent men who have the courage of their convictions, and it is a pressing need that gives little promise of being speedily relieved.

Fluctuating Sentiments

The Hartford (Conn.) "Labor Standard" quotes the following remarks of a business man of that city who had just visited a tobacco factory in the South: "While I have never borne labor unions any animosity, I have been rather lukewarm relative to their existence. But since my visit to a tobacco factory in Richmond, Va., where I saw women and children working their lives away under the most exacting conditions, I shall henceforth assist and sanction the existence of the unions, if for nothing else than the stand taken against child labor. I have children of my own."

There is a bunch of employers in San Francisco who would have some inventive genius can the sunlight so that they may use it at night and give it to them free of cost. They would claim such an invention by virtue of the fact that the inventor is their employee. They would claim that they buy his working time and that if he works out of hours he necessarily reduces his efficiency during the hours he is supposed to be at work, therefore any invention of his should belong to them. We recently heard an employer give expression to substantially this theory. What do you think of such twentieth century reasoning, and in San Francisco?

If half the time spent in criticism of others were applied to calm and deliberate self-analysis—and this applies to organizations as well as individuals—the world would progress much more rapidly than at present. We are all too prone to see the faults of the other fellow while entirely overlooking our own. We would not stop criticism of others, because it promotes health and efficiency, but we would urge that each individual and organization devote some time to a close self-analysis. When one discovers his own shortcomings he knows that he is not being treated to dishonest or unfair castigation and that the faults complained of really exist.

Of all the detestable characters on earth the sneaking carrion buzzard who steals into a man's home under the guise of friendship, all the time carrying in his rotten heart the hope that he may be able to gather information that will enable him to betray another human being for his personal gain, is the worst. From such a character arises a stench that would drive a bed of maggots to their doom in order to avoid it. Compared with such characters the filthy turkey buzzards of the wilderness are fragrant flowers of the garden. God has never created a being more hideous or disgusting to man than the Judas Iscariots that our modern detectives reveal.

There are still people in the world who regard the horse as a dumb animated machine, created solely for the use of men and women and having no rights of his own. That is largely because the horse is in the fullest sense a dumb animal. If you strike a dog he yelps; if you step on the tail of a cat she screams. A horse, on the other hand, may be beaten almost to death and make no sound. Pleasure he expresses by whinnying; but it is only in his death agony that his suffering finds audible expression, and frequently not even then. It is this pathetic silence, this inability of the horse to give utterance to his pain, that causes so many persons to ignore his sufferings. They have no imagination, and he has no cries with which to impress their indurated senses. If he could cry out as the dog does, our city streets would re-echo sounds that could not be borne a day. The change in the treatment of horses would be instant and enduring.

Wit at Random

"When I was a young man I worked twelve hours a day," said the sire.

"I admire your youthful energy," replied the son, "but I admire still more the mature wisdom which led you to stop it."—Washington "Star."

Passer-By—What's the fuss in the schoolyard, boy?

The Boy—Why, the doctor has just been around examin' us an' one of the deficient boys is knockin' th' everlastin' stuffin's out of a perfect kid.—Cleveland "Plain Dealer."

Mrs. De Venoff—Tommy, do you want some nice plum jam?

Tommy—Yes, mother.

"I was going to give you some to put on your bread but I've lost the key of the pantry."

"You don't need the key, mother; I can reach down through the window and open the door from the inside."

"That's what I wanted to know. Just wait until your father comes home."—"Ideas."

An expressman who had parleyed a dray into a prosperous business was congratulated by a competitor on the extent of his trade. Also he was led into the mysteries of it. Priceless freight was in his care and he didn't know it. Such reliance was placed upon his fidelity that he was not even cautioned about his responsibilities.

An illustration was suggested.

A box with breathing spaces contained a Belgian hare.

"Here, you see," said the discursor, "is a very valuable animal. Probably it is worth thousands."

"Is that so?" said the owner of the business. "I never thought of that. Let's have a look at it."

The top of the box was ripped off, the hare jumped out and ran away a mile a minute. The expressman scratched his head as he watched the vanishing act.

"I guess he's a valuable animal, all right," was his observation. "He doesn't know where he's going, because his address is on the box."—Exchange.

Teacher—Why, Willie, these problems are all wrong! What is the trouble?

Willie—I don't no. I worked awful hard before I could even get 'em wrong.—"Judge."

It was at a 10 and 15-cent vaudeville ticket window. A country villager approached. "Ten or fifteen?" asked the ticket seller. "Jist one," said the villager. "I hain't got the family along."—"Judge."

Mrs. Scrappy—Did you see this, John? "Woman Stung! Can't Talk! Puzzles Doctors!"

Scrappy—Mary, a woman's tongue that can't talk would puzzle more than doctors.—"Life."

"It is very provoking that your wife should have read my last letter to you. I thought you said she never opened your letters?"

"But you marked it 'Private.'"

Teacher—Away back in 1776 Washington was the nation's champion.

Jimmie—Aw! Whatchu giving us? The Washington team never won the championship!—"Judge."

"What are they moving the church for?"

"Well, stranger, I'm Mayor of these diggin's, an' I'm fer law enforcement. We've got an ordinance what says no saloon shall be nearer than 300 feet from a church. I give 'em three days to move the church."

Miscellaneous

A FIGHT YET TO BE MADE.

By Charles P. Hardeman.

Every workingman realizes the momentous influence of unionism in this city. No one is unaware of the remarkable benefits which organized labor has bestowed on the down-trodden and the helpless. Here the unions are solidly united, and, in consequence, are able to urge the rights of the laboring classes with great success. There is no field of industry, no place of business, no abode of physical activity, but betokens the power and ubiquity of unionism. Betake yourself to any part of the city, visit any house or store where persons are employed, and you cannot escape noticing the prodigious and wholesome influence exerted by the unions. The laboring people here are not deprived of a just compensation for their toil, nor worn out or enervated by illimitable hours, nor contemptuously treated or ruthlessly handled by their employers, and all this must be attributed to the foothold which unionism has secured in San Francisco. Union men are now enjoying the tree others have planted and which years of growth have ripened into fruit.

During the next few years this city of ours will be passing through a great change. Thousands upon thousands will make their homes here from all parts of the country. There will be a development, a marvelous increase in business of every sort. Nothing will be at a standstill. Everybody and everything will be on the move. We, union men, will not be able to stop where we are in order to exult over our past success and indulge in our present comfort. We must keep up with the tide by a progress of equal precipitation, or be swept away by it. Now we have an opportunity of showing other cities our soberness in the height of success, and our capability of holding on to what we have gained. Now is the time to brace up and see to it that our selfish opponents do not attempt to wrest our well-earned prestige from us. We must fight and fight hard, if we wish to have, in 1915, the vast influence which we now possess. Let love of justice and fairness inspire us, let enthusiasm invigorate and enliven us, let intrepidity and fearlessness embolden us, let caution and prudence direct us, in our coming portentous conflict. It is incumbent upon us to first search out and eliminate the enemies within our own fold. We may then contend with our external foes without fear of treachery, and, if each one of us does his part, and fights his best, there is no reason at all why we cannot triumph, and emerge from the struggle with flying colors, and stand strong and glorious, the stay and prop of our queenly city in 1915.

LABOR DAY COMMITTEE.

At the last meeting of the Labor Day committee, held Saturday night in the Building Trades Temple, credentials were received from the Alameda Labor Council for thirty-six delegates to represent that body on Labor Day matters.

It was decided that women, and children under the age of twelve years, should be admitted to Shell Mound Park free.

Andrew J. Gallagher, John O'Connell and John I. Nolan were named as a committee on regalia.

A grand marshal will be selected at the meeting to be held Saturday evening, July 27th.

Quick is the succession of human events; the cares of today are seldom the cares of tomorrow; and when we lie down at night, we may safely say to most of our troubles. "Ye have done your worst, and we shall meet no more."—Cowper.

Eight-Hour Clause Sticks.

During the consideration of the naval appropriation bill in the House the Hughes' eight-hour bill was inserted as an amendment for the reason that while the House had passed the eight-hour bill the Senate had not yet taken action. In order that the Senate might be compelled to act upon this legislation it was incorporated in the naval appropriation bill as an amendment. The Senate finally concurred in, with slight amendments, the Hughes' eight-hour bill, and it has been signed by the President. However, the Hughes' eight-hour bill does not become effective until January 1, 1913. In the consideration of the naval appropriation bill in the Senate an effort was made to eliminate the eight-hour amendment on the plea that the eight-hour day was already established by law. It was contended by the friends of the eight-hour amendment that its effect was to make the eight-hour provision effective, as far as naval construction was concerned, immediately, and that if it was stricken out contracts could be entered into prior to January 1, 1913, which would not extend the provisions of the eight-hour law to contractors and sub-contractors, on this naval appropriation bill, and which is a salient feature of the eight-hour law that goes into effect in 1913. An amendment was finally adopted that carries the eight-hour law into effect immediately on all contracts provided for in the naval appropriation bill. The amendment follows: "That the provisions of the act of Congress entitled 'an act limiting the hours of daily service of laborers and mechanics employed upon work done for the United States, or for any territory, or for the District of Columbia, and for other purposes,' approved June 19, 1912, shall be in force as to all contracts made under this act from and after its passage."

Union Busters at Work.

At Fort Wayne, Ind., some weeks ago the employees of the Packard and Bond Piano companies of that city organized a local union under the Piano, Organ and Musical Instrument Workers' International Union. As soon as it became known that the men had organized the president of the two companies discharged all employees known to be members of the new union. The National Piano Manufacturers' Association also appeared on the scene to assist the local firms. It is also stated that operatives were secured from a Chicago detective agency to accept employment in the factories and also join the union in order to secure a list of members. The list was secured and reported, with the result that 200 men were promptly locked out. There were about 100 men who had not joined the organization, and they were not disturbed, but they determined to make common cause and walked out in sympathy with the locked-out men. Both plants are completely tied up. The local, being a new one, is without funds, and is soliciting donations to carry on the fight. J. F. Blakely, 1903 Webster street, Fort Wayne, Ind., is authorized to accept and receipt for all donations, which will be used to carry the contest to a successful conclusion.

Perkins Knocks Out Eight-Hour Clause.

While the naval appropriation bill was under consideration in the Senate on July 5th Senator Perkins of California submitted an amendment to strike out the provision, "that the coal shall be mined by labor that is employed not exceeding eight hours per day," which was inserted and passed by the House. This refers to coal purchased by the Government to operate its vessels. The Senate concurred in the amendment of Senator Perkins and the provision was struck out.

It was asserted by Senators Perkins and Lodge that it would be impossible for the navy department to get "eight-hour" coal for a considerable length of time. Another objection was that coal was mined and paid for by the ton. The bill now goes to a conference committee. Whether the opponents of the eight-hour clause can sustain their position before the conference committee is a matter of conjecture, for undoubtedly it is possible to procure immense quantities of coal that is mined by laborers employed eight hours per day.

Defective Rails Cause Wreck.

Experts connected with the Interstate Commerce Commission have for many months been conducting an investigation for the purpose of securing data relative to defective railroad rails. From information gathered it is shown that during November and December, 1911, and January, 1912, there were 2760 accidents attributable to rail failures, and of this number 936 occurred as the result of defective rails. The defects in the rails are due to the process of manufacture, and H. W. Belnap, chief inspector of safety appliances of the Interstate Commerce Commission, states that "present specifications and tests of rails, insofar as the detection of longitudinal seams is concerned, appear to be inadequate. It would seem to be time that some definite action be taken toward eliminating this source of danger and securing structurally sound rails."

Paper Makers' Strike.

After several conferences held between the representatives of the International Brotherhood of Paper Makers and the management of a number of paper mills in Kalamazoo, Mich., in which the paper makers sought to secure the eight-hour day, the manufacturers refused to concede and a strike is in progress. The mills affected are the Kalamazoo Paper Company, Bryant Paper Company, King Paper Company and the Monarch Paper Company. About 500 men are directly affected, but it means the closing down of the mills, involving some 2800 employees. A large number of paper mills have been operating under the eight-hour day for a long time, and within the past few months a large number of mills in the East have changed to the three tour or eight-hour workday. As a competitive proposition it is difficult to see why the Kalamazoo mills cannot also go to the eight-hour day. The contest will be vigorously prosecuted by the paper makers.

Boston Car Strike.

The street car strike in Boston is making headway. The State Board of Arbitration and Conciliation is conducting an investigation, and as a result probably something materially will grow out of it. There are 3500 strikers, and they are being fairly well provided with sustenance. The condition existing on the car lines is well-nigh indescribable, with only few people using the cars, and accidents continue to be the order of the day, and blockades are not uncommon, the strike breakers being extremely "green." Those in charge of the strike report that they are satisfied with the present state of affairs, and look for a change for the better to come in the shape of consent on the part of the company to open negotiations. The business men and the public generally are sympathetically inclined toward the strikers.

Retail Clerks' Convention.

The general convention of the Retail Clerks' International Protective Association convened at Columbus, Ohio, beginning July 16th. THE COMING DEMOCRACY.

By the Rev. Charles Stelzle.

Sometimes we wonder why the men of olden days could not see the coming of inevitable crises, which are so clearly discerned by the present-day historian as he looks backward. Hindsight is not always so commendable a virtue as foresight, but it has its compensations. If history repeats itself, and if the historian is really a prophet, then let us learn from the seeming blindness of our fathers.

One need not be a prophet nor the son of a prophet to say that this is the era of the common man. The masses are rising to assert themselves, as never before; because the coming democracy is being built, not upon a lawless revolution, but upon an evolution which seems natural and, therefore, must be permanent. No human power can prevent its coming.

This means great things for the people. It fills with hope those who have been bowed down with the burdens of the past. It means, also, that every true lover of the race will rejoice, for the well-being of the common humanity must be the ultimate aim of every worker in the field of social service. And more and more is the great-hearted employer realizing that his business must be conducted on a social basis—not simply for the good of the few who are directly interested as stockholders.

The power of the labor leader of the past will be considered small indeed, compared with that which will be given the leader of the future. He will be statesman, prophet, preacher. He cannot be demagogue, grafter, charlatan. He must be such as to inspire confidence—not only from those who are his immediate followers, but by those who will look to him as an expert on the subjects most directly involved—as the true representative of the common people.

It's a go -- boys -- I'll set 'em up to Headquarters and secretaries' offices, 68 Haight. The regular weekly meeting of the board of directors was held Tuesday, July 16, 1912, President Albert A. Greenbaum presiding.

A transfer was deposited by Joe Bettencourt, trombone, Local No. 264.

Members are hereby notified not to accept any engagements with any traveling orchestras for musical comedy or engagements of a like nature on the road without first filing contract with the local secretary.

The regular monthly meeting of the union was held Thursday, July 11, 1912.

Twenty-five dollars were donated to the home rule on taxation fund. A committee of five was appointed to arrange for representation in the Labor Day parade. Other important matters were handled by the meeting. There was a good attendance.

Mr. Louis Marcus is spending a few weeks' vacation at Napa Soda Springs.

Two of our Hibernian members, Messrs. Merz and Auerbach, are on the Russian river on a hunting and fishing trip.

The first concert of the San Francisco Municipal Band will be held in Washington Square, Sunday, July 21, under the direction of J. A. Keogh.

The delinquent list will be published in the next issue of the "Labor Clarion." Members knowing themselves in arrears can avoid publication by paying amount due to A. S. Morey, 68 Haight street, at once.

Elmer H. Slissman, the genial secretary, has been writing so many stories of late concerning the escapades of Cupid among the membership, that he became inoculated himself and quietly slipped away on Wednesday afternoon and married Mrs. Vi Jakes. His effort at secrecy, however, was not entirely successful, for several members were apprised of what had taken place in time to spread the news among his friends before the picnic at Shellmound Park on Thursday, and while he escaped the rice and old shoes he did not avoid congratulations and well wishes.

REGAL GETS A UNION STAMP.

At Holyoke, Mass., a recent issue of the "Artisan," the local labor paper, states that the Regal Shoe Company of Whitman, Mass., has been added to the list of union stamp factories by the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union. For a number of years efforts have been made by the officers of the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union to enter into contractual relations with the Regal Company. As a result an agreement has been secured and the factory will operate as a union factory henceforth.

TYPOGRAPHICAL TOPICS.

Thomas W. Kelley sent a post card from Wellington, New Zealand, to the effect that he intended to jump his job as ship's printer on the Aarongi as soon as Sydney, Australia, was reached. The cabalistic letters "N. G." described Mr. Kelley's opinion of things printorial on an ocean liner. He will either follow the business or go on the stage in the land beneath the southern cross.

Next Sunday, July 21st, the San Jose and San Francisco printers' baseball teams will hook up for their annual baseball game at the Ocean Shore grounds, Twelfth and Mission streets, in this city. The typos of the suburban city have a speedy team, and the local nine has been greatly strengthened. A fast and snappy game is expected. In order to defray the expenses of the visiting team an admission of 25 cents will be charged; ladies free. Game called promptly at 2:30 o'clock. You are expected to be on hand and witness an exciting game.

W. N. Mappin has received a letter from C. C. Stewart, who left this city for the Home at Colorado Springs a few months ago, in which he says he is gradually improving and hopes for complete recovery as a result of the treatment he is receiving and the favorable climatic conditions. He sends regards to all old friends here.

The report comes from Sacramento that the labor paper started by Andrew F. Smith, formerly foreman of the State Printing Office, has suspended publication.

This from the British Columbia "Federationist" (Vancouver) shows that printers are honest folks and would not intentionally keep borrowed umbrellas: "The secretary of the Typographical Union, in response to this notice posted in Labor Temple, received 11 umbrellas, now awaiting claimants: 'Notice—Will the person who was seen to take an umbrella from the Labor Hall at the close of the May meeting return same to secretary's office and no questions will be asked; otherwise action will be taken for recovery.'"

Secretary Michelson left on Wednesday for Guerneville on his vacation trip. He expects to put in about ten days roughing it through the Sonoma and Mendocino hills in order that he may keep himself in championship form for the next Olympic games in 1916.

San Antonio, Texas, is not allowing the weeds to grow in her garden. She is out after the next convention in earnest, and unless a Nashville "booster meeting" is held in Cleveland similar to the "Cleveland booster meeting" held here last summer in B'nai B'rith Hall, she should have a good chance to win. Powerful have been these "booster" meetings in the past.

The fiftieth semi-annual meeting of the Union Printers' Mutual Aid Society was held on Sunday last at Faust Hall. This society, which furnishes a physician and medicine free to its members, is now entering upon its twenty-sixth year, and during the past twelve months disbursed $2680 for sick and death benefits. It also pays $10 a week sick benefits and buries its dead, and at the last meeting adopted a ritual to be used at the funerals of deceased members. Past President Davis was the recipient of a beautiful gold watch charm. The following officers were elected and installed: President, J. M. Scott; first vice-president, L. F. Guedet; second vice-president, R. H. Norton; recording secretary, J. A. Snell; financial secretary, G. H. Branch; treasurer, J. W. Kelly; marshal, J. D. Laing; guardian, C. H. Miller; board of directors, W. H. Forbes and P. J. Cotter.

Mademoiselle Sealby and Monsieur Duclos, two famous French dancers and the creators of the "No Clasp Waltz," will be seen for the first time in this city. Bert Terrell, the Dutch character vocalist, will also appear. He has two voices and is thus equipped for a little grand opera all by himself.
